PRODUCER

Racines is a collaboration between Etienne de Montille of Domaine de Montille in Volnay, and his Californian-born winemaker Brian Sieve. The story of this dynamic project started in 2016 when Etienne and Brian set off on a month's excursion to California. Their aim was to discover the Golden State's great Chardonnay and Pinot Noir producers and to get to know its innumerable appellations. After hundreds of tastings and encounters, they were eventually taken in by the promise of Santa Barbara County. Etienne and Brian were especially struck by the precise and nuanced character of the wines from vineyards in the Santa Rita Hills and Santa Maria Valley. Together, they sought out highly-coveted sites in the Santa Rita Hills. The combination of world-famous vineyards and world-class winemaking makes Racines one of the most exciting projects we have come across.

VINEYARDS

The grapes for this wine were grown on four different vineyards - Sanford & Benedict, La Rinconada, La Encantada and Domaine de la Cote. The larger volume for this cuvée came from the last two vineyards. These were barrels that either exceeded the capacity of the vineyard designate cuvée or provided Racines with an opportunity to blend a few of the best Pinot parcels together. The parcels complement each other to create a more complex, earth driven wine compared to the Santa Rita Hills cuvée appellation.

VINTAGE

The 2019 vintage offered optimal growing conditions in the Santa Rita Hills. Cooler, mild spring days resulted in a later bud break and flowering. Flowering took place after the common springtime winds and helped to ensure a good set. Summer offered overall moderate conditions, with few heat spikes leading to consistent and predictable ripening and longer hang-time. Cooler autumn temperatures allowed the fruit to ripen evenly and steadily, resulting in a later picking date than the previous two vintages. While the yields were slightly smaller than the previous years, the vineyards produced high quality, flavourful fruit.

VINIFICATION

The grapes were fermented 50% whole cluster and in 20% new oak.

TASTING NOTES

Flavours of ripe cherry, blood orange and spice dominate, with a bold hit of savoury from the 50% whole cluster. Supple and creamy, this is a very expressive wine.
